2. OBJECTIVES AND LEARNING OUTCOMES

Objectives

The aim of the subject is to prepare students to get to know successful innovative businesses (startups) and to be able to create such businesses themselves in the future. During the semester, students learn in detail the success criteria required for startups and early operation of innovative enterprises, including the conceptual framework and methodological tools of startup management. The course answers several important questions such as • Why is it worth establishing a business startup when there are plenty of job opportunities? (career challenge) • Why is it worth gaining entrepreneurial knowledge if you have not decided on starting a business yet? (intellectual challenge) • How to manage and operate a business if you want to launch one? (entrepreneurial challenge) • What should you know about marketing and market research to be successful with your product among customers? (product-market fit) The classes are held on the one hand by educational entrepreneurs, but on the other hand many successful domestic entrepreneurs, as guest speakers, also report on their experiences, market environment, challenges and joys of the “lifestyle” of entrepreneurship. The subject is supplemented by practical subjects Business Development Lab I and II (BMEGT20M403, BMEGT20M404), which deepen the theoretical lectures taught here.

II. SUBJECT REQUIREMENTS

TESTING AND ASSESSMENT OF LEARNING PERFORMANCE

General Rules

The aim of the course is to provide students a theoretical introduction to the fields of innovation, entrepreneurship, management and marketing, to let them understand the basic concepts. Assessments methods are primarily tests.

Performance assessment methods

Detailed description of assessments during the term: Each midterm test consists of two parts. The first part is about the concepts and basic knowledge of the given topic. Typically, this may consist of multiple choice tests, short-answer questions and tasks, and true/false questions, figure supplementations. The second part of the midterm test aims to assess more complex understanding of the topic through essays or short case studies, problem solving tasks, or calculations. 30-60 minutes are available for writing a midterm. There are no minimum scores for the individual tests. The condition of course completion is to achieve at least 51 percent of the total scores. During the academic semester it is possible to receive extra scores which will be automatically counted in case of reaching the minimum requirement of 50 scores.
