2. OBJECTIVES AND LEARNING OUTCOMES

Objectives

The focus of the subject is expanding the knowledge base of the use and context of English in today's globalized world. It aims to introduce and raise awareness of research related to the language use features of English in the world of academia and professional contexts. On the one hand, it raises awareness of the specificities of academic language use while familiarising students with the typical genres of economic and business life in a multicultural context. Last but not least, the subject examines the need for expert translation and interpreting skills in a multilingual and international environment, even if the negotiating parties have a high level of language skills

Academic results

Knowledge

1. Students are aware of the differences in the use of languages in the Anglo-Saxon world,
2. Students are aware of the linguistic and cultural specificities of the different types of texts (scientific papers, summaries, business reports, business letters),
3. understand the structural and rhetorical features of the above types of texts,
4. Students are aware of the differences between formal written language (academic and business) and everyday language in terms of both vocabulary and grammar.

Skills

1. Students can distinguish between formal (scientific, economic and business) and informal texts
2. Students can avoid the pitfalls of plagiarism, can produce accurate bibliographies and references,
3. Students can recognise the main English dialects
4. Students can maintain communication despite cultural behaviours that differ from their expectations
5. Students can assess the need for an expert interpreter-translator
6. Students can identify and look behind the cultural reasons for language differences

Attitude

1. students accept the Anglo-Saxon written rhetorical conventions and traditions,
2. students strive for writing high-quality and culturally sensitive texts according to academic and professional requirements,
3. students are devoted to keep track of the possible changes in genre requirements.
4. openness and readiness to decentre and understand other people
5. accepts that, despite a common language, there may be great differences in pronunciation, vocabulary, grammatical correctness and culture of behaviour

Independence and responsibility

1. students independently think over their tasks and related problems,
2. students cooperate with peers in completing different tasks,
3. students take responsibility for further developing their own written communication independently
